I knew Dr Ali from Hanover where I'd worked with him. He was a good doctor and an amazing human being. This morning I happened to look him up to see where he was, and was greatly saddened by learning of his passing. His nickname for me was Ferrous. Fly high, my friend!

“ Ali, the time we were together was so short but it left a devastating effect on me. I want you to know it is now 2 years I cannot stop thinking about you. I hoped to get engage with you as I saw how lonely you were .I saw how badly you wanted to have a family and grow to be happy . Your life was cut short by your mother. If she had not forced you to tape your tube or she had not forced you to take shower that day which led to the tube coming out,you were still with us . The excessive love from you mother, the lack of boundary from you mom ruined your life .I wish I could convince you to come with me and start a new life .....Love you and love you little daughter .....

As the days go by living without my beloved Ali seem unreal, difficult, meaningless and empty. His loss left a big hole in my heart. Ali was my only child, my love and he knew well I love him beyond any imagination. I'm glad partly that our last messages to each other was to say how much we love each other.

“ DR. Farshidi....a person you could never forget. We spoke all the time when he was at Jefferson overnights. I am in the Transfer Center and would have to call him frequently and he always had a great attitude and was down to earth and always made us laugh. Sending prayers & thoughts to his family. Whats Up Bro was his tagline ha ha.

“ Ali and I worked together at Einstein Medical Center Montgomery. He was a truly good person and an excellent doctor. His patients were lucky to have him and he cared deeply for them. Ali put himself in harm's way every day in order to help others. He is a hero and he will be missed. Rest in peace my friend.

“ Ali was my senior resident at EVMS. He was one the most helpful, always ready to teach and the undoubtedly the smartest resident at the time. I still cannot believe he left us so soon!!! last spoke to him a over a year ago and had no clue that it would be our last time. I pray to Almighty to give his family strength to get through this difficult time!!!

“ I was in Ali's IM residency class. He was one of the absolute salt of the Earth, kindest, smartest human beings on this planet. This one hurts. His impact will be huge. The world has lost one of the best and my heart is heavy. Rest In Peace Ali. You are loved. ❤️❤️

Your feelings and thoughts toward my beloved son touched me so deploy. I cried to read it and a sense of gratitude toward him and you both. The way he touched your heart and the way he was with others to have that effect. My gratitude is beyond expression.he was my love, my only child and as a mother I'm lost without him. Dr lovino and all others you give me hope that the true compassion which all humanity is in dire need for it can be find in peoples hearts.

“ I went to EVMS with Ali and I was really sad to hear this. We get busy in our lives a special people drop off our radars. I really wish I had the opportunity to tell him how much I appreciated him being there when I needed someone during those tough nights in the cadaver lab. He was always trying to help people..this was his way. My heartfelt condolences to those he left behind. I hope that God has a special place for him.

“ I met Ali in residency at EVMS. He was a fellow Persian so we had a lot in common. He was always trying to please everyone around him even if it wasn't fair to him. He was always trying to read another uptodate article and absorb more knowledge. On occasion we used to go eat chicken wings after work. He used to say “are you a man or mouse” when I couldn't eat anymore. He was always challenging me to eat more. One day he was in a bad mood and I asked him “what's wrong Ali”? He said “my parents told me women would be throwing themselves at me when I became a doctor where are they? I don't see any!” I couldn't stop laughing then he stated to laugh. He was one of kind and truly missed. RIP Ali
