“ On Tuesday, my wife lost a father, my children lost a grandfather, and I lost a friend.

Others have reached out to me to express their sorrow.

The petroleum industry is extremely sad to see John go. They have absolutely, positively no idea what to do with the excess supply of gasoline.

Sears was also sorry to hear of the Mooney family loss. They said they have a huge inventory of khaki's and blue oxfords. I think they indicated that they would have a sale on Monday to try and reduce inventory. I think the Florsheim folks may join Sears.

EZ Pass may need to reduce staff. The commission is trying to figure out how they will deal with the loss of revenue now that Granpa will not be driving up and down the toll roads.

The inexpensive eye glass industry has also taken a pretty big hit. Between his various residences and cars, Granpa always seemed to forget where his glasses were. I am pretty sure he was good for at least a purchase a week.

The wine industry, pretzel industry, processed cheese industry, and buttermilk industry are all at a loss.

I have been blessed to have known Granpa for over half of my life. I will especially cherish the last 10 years. I will miss seeing the laundry room door open and watching Ava and Anthony shout Granpa! and run like little buggers to hug him. The beauty of it - the smile on his face was always just as wide and bright as the smile on their faces. I will miss him dearly. Thanks a Million Granpa for being part of my life.##imported-begin##Anthony Del Vescovo##imported-end##
